POWDER PLANT BLOWS UP AND KILLS EIGHT

Telegrapher Hears Warning of Explosion and Sets Block Holding All Trains

THEN FELL OVER UNCONSCIOUS

Pittsburgh, Sept. 16.—(By United Press)—From four to ten were killed and others were injured by an explosion of the Oakdale plant of the Acton company. Officials admitted today the probable loss of 8 lives. The identified dead are John Gaul, 26, of McDonald and G. R. Dodds. Mr. Dodds was night watchman of the operations when the building blew up. A slight explosion was heard, but before the big explosion occurred and bodies and parts of bodies were hurled through the air. Some of them were thrown for more than 1000 feet. Dodds' death was established by a small piece of flesh with distinguishing marks. Several nearby buildings were destroyed, and many windows broken by the explosion.

M. S. Lauderbach operating at a nearby tower on the Pan Handle division of the Penna. R. R. heard the warning of the explosion, and thinking that it was nearby oil tanks, just as the explosion reached his ears, he fell unconscious as a result of concussion. Between the time he felt the explosion and heard it, Lauderbach has one-fourth of a second to act. Several trains were held up.

Vanderlip, wife of the president of the National City Bank, the strongest national bank in the United States, nor Mrs. Walter McNab Miller, the first auditor of the National American Woman Suffrage Association.

Case of Geo. H. Dush Against Harbison-Walker Co. Now Commanding Attention

The case of George H. Dush against the Harbison-Walker Refractories company for $5,000 damages, due to injuries received by plaintiff while working for the defendant company went to trial in civil court before Judge Bell Friday and is still on.

In this case Mr. Dush asks damages for personal injuries sustained on June 8, 1915. On that date he was engaged in pushing a car of clay through the plant at Stronach and slipped and fell, breaking his knee cap and leaving the ligaments badly, causing permanent injuries.

He alleges in his statement and testimony that the company through their superintendent promised several times to take care of him but when he made a final demand for compensation it was refused, hence the damage suit.

Dush is represented by R. D. Swoope and Patterson & Gleason, while W. C. Miller has charge of the defense.

The damage suit of Bert Bovier against the Pennsylvania Railroad company for personal injuries received when a buggy in which he was riding was struck by a train at McGees Mills on December 23rd, 1915, was continued until next term. Mr. Bovier is asking for $1,500 damages and there were some forty witnesses here all week to testify in the case but it was impossible to reach it on the list.

DUBOIS LAWYER DEPARTS FROM COURT RULES

Case Is Withdrawn From Jury And Costs Put On His Client—New Trial Is Necessary

QUOTES FALSE EVIDENCE

The sharp practice which attorneys sometimes indulge in, in their efforts to win a case before a jury, served yesterday to get a well known DuBois lawyer to get "in Dutch" with Judge Bell and resulted in the court withdrawing the case from the jury and putting the costs on the plaintiff, whom the attorney was unsuccessfully attempting to recover for all the parties involved were from DuBois. The plaintiff was a foreign woman who had brought suit against a foreign gentleman for slander, alleging that her character was damaged to the extent of $1,000 by reason of certain stories and insinuations given circulation by the defendant.

The case occupied the attention of the court Thursday and Friday and the attorney for the plaintiff was making his final plea to the jury when he made the break which upset the proceedings and resulted in a bill of costs for his client.

While the attorney was making his plea Judge Bell retired momentarily from the bench to the private court in the rear, and when the attorney noticed him leave he started to deliver evidence some things that had not been testified to at all. When the court returned his seat on the bench the argument was continued until the evidence and ended with an attempt plan for a verdict favorable to the fair prosecutor.

Judge Bell then delivered his charge to the jury, and at his conclusion before the jury had time to take their seats, the defendant's attorney arose and called the court's attention to the action of the plaintiff's attorney in misstating things to the jury during his brief absence from the bench Judge Bell thereupon stated that while not in his chair he had heard the remarks objected to and that the point was well taken, as the defendant's attorney knew that he had violated the rules of court in his attempt to run the case and that if the proper motion was made he would withdraw the case from the jury and place the costs on the plaintiff. The motion was promptly made and the case withdrawn which will necessitate the expense of a second trial at a later date.

WILSON DEMANDS GINGER

That "Wilson demands Ginger" is the announcement in a dispatch from Mr. Wilson's summer home to the New York papers. It appears that Mr. Wilson is highly indignant over the result in Maine and is disposed to hold his campaign managers responsible for it. It is predicted, therefore, that there is a very bad quarter of an hour in store for Chairman McCormick. Mr. Wilson never needs any criticisms of himself and, doubtless, is wholly unaware of the drastic condemnation to which he has been subjected by Mr. Hughes, Col. Roosevelt and other Republican speakers. Close friends describe him as convinced beyond argument of his own popularity, and firmly persuaded that nothing will prevent the American people from entrusting their government to him for another four years. But the Maine results were disturbing and, according to the correspondents with him, he purposes to make someone suffer for their carelessness in losing Maine.

THAT SHIPPING BILL

The New York Sun characterizes the passage of the McAdoo-Wilson Shipping Bill as "a concession to pig headed obsession." In the estimation of many competent observers, however, the Sun is unwarranted in this description. It is true that the Shipping Bill will serve no good purpose. It is true that it appropriates $50,000,000 of the people's money without promising anything but loss and injury in return, but there are certain features of the bill which should not be overlooked. First, the bill creates five jobs paying $7,500 year each and one paying $5,000 a year to be filled on the eve of the national election, a reason quite sufficient in itself, judging by the record of this administration. Then, as was so often explained to reluctant Democrats in congress, it "saves the face of the President." Of course it may puzzle any intelligent analyst to understand how the passage of the mere shadow of the original bill can save Mr. Wilson's face, but his son-in-law assured members of congress it would and so, perhaps it has. When the Crown Prince first conceived the idea of a Shipping Bill, there was a great need of transportation and many marooned foreign vessels were in American ports. It was Crown Prince McAdoo's idea to buy these ships, but he made the fatal mistake of putting himself and Secretary Daniels on the board to make the purchases. Republicans, and some intelligent Democrats, like Senator Bankhead, foresaw that to buy these vessels in time of war and send them out under the American flag would inevitably involve this country in the European war, while Democratic and Republican senators alike were wholly unwilling to trust Mr. McAdoo to purchase $50,000,000 worth of ships. They knew of course that poor old Daniels would be a "me too" on the board and that the other members would not dare oppose the President's son-in-law. They sought to amend the bill by eliminating McAdoo and Daniels from the board and inserting a provision against buying foreign ships. The Crown Prince would not permit that and the bill was defeated by Republican filibuster with which the Democratic senators frankly sympathized.

ALLEGED TROUBLE MAKER DEPARTED FROM JAPAN

Tokio, Sept. 15.—(By United Press) Hermann Wohlers, a German resident of Yokohama for the last 3 years, has just been deported from this country for trying to make trouble between the United States, Japan and Great Britain. He was given 8 days to get out and he went quick. Several other charges against Wohlers were made; that he wrote charges against Japan to the American government; that he induced an intoxicated American marine to pull the British Union Jack from the wall of a ballroom where Americans were celebrating the 4th of July with Britishers as guests, for which he marine was court-martialed. That he entered Yokohama Park and loudly denounced the Russ-Jap pact.

Today's Geographic Study of The Great European War Zone

Washington, D. C., Sept. 15.—Dobruja, that fertile Rumanian plain lying between the Danube and the Black Sea, where German and Bulgarian forces recently began their important drive northward, is described in the following war geography bulletin issued from Washington by the National Geographic Society:

"When the low lying, treeless, largely fen-and-swamp province of Dobruja was ceded to Rumania in 1878 and in exchange this nation was despoiled of the rich, thickly populated province of Bessarabia which had been a part of her domain since it had been taken from Russia after the Crimean war, the Rumanians believed more than ever in their ancient proverb, 'Guard me, O God, against my friends, for against my foes I can guard myself.' In the 38 years which have intervened, however, Dobruja has taken rapid strides, thanks to the advances in agriculture and to the prosperity of the several Black Sea ports of the province. So striking has been the development of the region that at the conclusion of the Second Balkan War in 1913, Rumania demanded as her share of the spoils from Bulgaria an enlargement of this formerly despised area. Including this newly acquired territory the Dobruja now embraces nearly 9,500 square miles, with a population of 600,000, made up of many elements—Bulgars, Turks, Rumanians, gypsies and Jews.

"By an ironic whim of fate, Rumania paid her expenses of the war in which she acquired this recent addition to Dobruja and secured the capital for its development from the proceeds of a loan of 300,000,000 francs floated in Germany just prior to the outbreak of the great European conflict. Under the improved conditions this section now produces important crops of cereals, tobacco, sugar beets, vines and mulberries for silk worms.

"Bounded on the north and west by the Danube, on the east by the Black Sea, and on the south by Bulgaria, Dobruja is of great strategic importance, a fact recognized by the Romans who defended this section on the south by Trajan's Wall, a double rampart extending from the Black Sea, at a point near Constanza, to the banks of the Danube. The present Rumanian-Bulgarian frontier is some 60 miles southwest of this ancient wall, an extends from the river to the sea a distance of 100 miles in an air line.

"The earliest mention of the Dobruja region is as the home of the Geta and Dacians (Pliny explains that the former is the Greek name and the latter the Latin for the same tribe). Herodotus speaks of this people as 'the bravest and most honorable of all the Thracian tribe', and credits them with having attempted to stay the march of the Persians under King Darius in the 6th century before the Christian era.

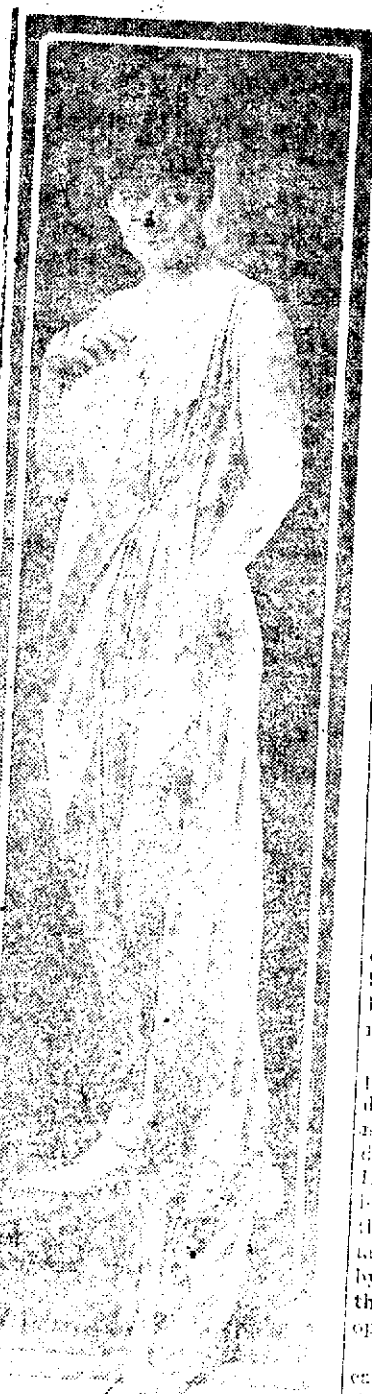

"One of the most picturesque stories of the ancient inhabitants of Dobruja is related in connection with an expedition against them headed by Philip of Macedonia. The great general was besieging one of the principal towns of the tribe and just as he was about to give the signal for an assault the gates were thrown open and a long line of priests, clad in white robes and playing lyres, marched out and came into the camp of the enemy. So impressed was Philip by this sight that he spared the city and took Media, the daughter of the Getic king, as his wife. Thereafter the Getae were allies of the Macedonians in their campaign against the Scythians. By the middle of the fourth century B. C. the tribe began to expand beyond the bounds of Scythia Minor, as the region was then known, into the land lying on the left bank of the Danube.

"During the last quarter of the 7th century, Ispardich, one of the five sons of the legendary Bulgarian prince Kuvrat, with a band of followers from Bessarabia, crossed the Danube into Dobruja and conquered its people. But the Bulgarians experienced the same fate which the Normans encountered with the Saxons in England—the conquerors were absorbed by the conquered.

"By the treaty of San Stefano, which ended the Russo-Turkish war of 1877-78, in which the Rumanians distinguished themselves at Plevna, Dobruja was ceded to Russia by Turkey, the express design of the former being to acquire the land and force Rumania to accept it in exchange for coveted Bessarabia, as previously stated.

"From the point where it becomes the western boundary of Dobruja the Danube is a wide stream, flowing between low banks. Its waters are studded with numerous islets which are the homes of vast flocks of water fowls—wild swans, wild geese, pelicans and herons. A famous traveler described the impression which this region makes upon passengers of the river steamers, thus: 'At night pelicans and storks stalking about on lonely islands utter at times a wild cry, which, more than anything I know, brings to mind the images of solitude and desolation.'

SAYS BODY IS A POISON FACTORY

Urges Everyone to Drink Glass of Hot Water Before Breakfast

Just as coal, when it burns, leaves behind a certain amount of combustible material in the form of ashes so the food and drink taken day after day leaves in the alimentary canal a certain amount of indigestible material, which if not completely eliminated from the system each day, becomes food for the millions of bacteria which infest the bowels. From this mass of left-over waste, toxins and poison-like poisons are formed and sucked into the blood.

Men and women who can't get feeling right must begin to take inside baths. Before eating breakfast each morning drink a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it to wash out of the thirty feet of bowels the previous day's accumulation of poisons and toxins and to keep the entire alimentary canal clean, pure and fresh.

Those who are subject to sick headache, colds, biliousness, constipation, others who wake up with bad taste, foul breath, backache, rheumatic stiffness, or have a sour, gassy stomach after meals, are urged to get a quarter pound of limestone phosphate from the drug store, and begin practicing internal sanitation. This will cost very little, but is sufficient to make anyone an enthusiast on the subject.

Remember inside bathing is more important than outside bathing, because the skin pores do not absorb impurities into the blood, causing poor health, while the bowel pores do. Just as soap and hot water cleanses, sweetens and freshens the skin, so hot water, and limestone phosphate act on the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels.

ALL CANADA TO BE "DRY."

Ottawa, Ont., Sept. 16.—A forty years' battle on the part of the anti-liquor forces to make Ontario "dry" was crowned with victory today, when every licensed bar in the province was closed by operation of the prohibition statute enacted by the legislature last Spring. The winning of Ontario is regarded as the most important victory that the prohibitionists have yet scored in Canada, since the Province is the largest in population and the most important from an industrial standpoint of any of the Dominion.

The chief aim of the new law is to wipe out the retail liquor business. The law does not prohibit the manufacture of intoxicants, so long as the brewers and distillers do not sell their product in Ontario. The wholesale liquor business will be permitted to continue under strict regulations. The sale of liquor for medicinal, scientific and sacramental purposes will be permitted, also under strict regulations. Druggists are to be permitted to sell liquor only on physician's prescriptions and then only in quantities not to exceed six ounces.

The chief sufferers from the enforcement of the prohibition law will be the hotels, which in Canada have depended to a much greater extent upon the revenues derived from their bars than have the hotels in the United States. The capital invested in hotels in Ontario is estimated to be between fifty and one hundred million dollars. With the closing of their bars it is believed that many of the hotels will be forced to quit business.

With the winning of Ontario the prohibitionists see in prospect an all-dry Canada—the first of the great nations of the world to put its foot down on the liquor traffic. Prince Edward Island led the way by abolishing the sale of liquor by retail more than fifteen years ago. In June of last year Saskatchewan followed suit by closing up all the retail bars with the exception of twenty government operated liquor stores.

Manitoba, Nova Scotia and Alberta came under the prohibition banner this year. In New Brunswick the sale of liquor will cease next April, in British Columbia next June and in the Yukon Territory next July, provided the prohibitionists win in the voting that is about to take place. Newfoundland also will finish up her licensed liquor selling at the end of this year. This will leave Quebec as the only province in which prohibition legislation has not been passed.

HERE'S THE "DEATH GOD."

Captain De Booy, a young Dutch explorer, found this "death god" in the West Indies, and he brought it to the United States. It was in a deep, dank cave, such a wonderful cave, he said, that the natives had not dared to enter since the days of Columbus. Consequently he insisted the god is at least as old as Columbus would be had he lived. He says there is no other "Death God" in the world just like this one except a lady death god, and no one can get her. Captain De Booy presented the god to the American Museum of Natural History in New York.

Pity the Man Who Doesn't Advertise!

By BRENN.

"I have an established business. I don't require advertising."

That is the answer of some self satisfied man to a request for advertising. Meanwhile his progressive neighbor is using printer's ink lavishly.

The result is obvious. It's only a question of time. The self satisfied business man soon finds his trade disappearing. His progressive neighbor goes ahead with leaps and bounds. Every business, no matter how firmly established, needs advertising. If it isn't advertised it soon will be in a rut. Don't get in a rut. Advertise.

Section 8. The debt of any county, city, borough, township, school district, or other municipality or incorporated district, except as provided herein, and in section fifteen of this article, shall never exceed seven (7) per centum upon the assessed value of the taxable property therein, but the debt of the city of Philadelphia may be increased in such amount that the total city debt shall not exceed ten (10) per centum upon the assessed value of the taxable property therein, nor shall any such municipality or district incur any new debt, or increase its indebtedness, to an amount exceeding two (2) per centum upon such assessed valuation of property without the consent of the electors thereof at a public election in such manner as shall be provided by law. Lesson XII.—Third Quarter, For Sept. 17, 1916.

THE INTERNATIONAL SERIES.

Text of the Lesson, Acts xxii, 17-29.
Memory Verses, 27-29—Golden Text, Pa. xci, 2—Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

This chapter is the record of Paul's account of himself and his conversion given to the people from the castle stairs. The chief captain having given him permission to speak after he found out that he was not the leader of a band of murderers, he stood on the stairs, and, beckoning with his hand till there was a great silence, he spake unto the people in the Hebrew language, and, hearing him speak in their own language, they kept the more silence (xxi, 40; xxii, 1, 2). It was the Jews from Asia who started this riot, and the fact that the Lord had spoken to him from heaven at the time of his conversion in the Hebrew language may have led him thus to decide at this time (xxi, 27; xxvi, 14).

When the Spirit records an event or a bit of history several times He must have some special reason for so doing and desire that we give special attention to it. Note the threefold repetition of Paul's story in chapters ix, xxii and xxvi and partially in Phil. iii and I Tim. i and compare the three times repeated record of Hezekiah and Sennacherib in Kings, Chronicles and Isaiah and other repeated records. I have no doubt that the conversion of Saul was typical of the conversion of all Israel, when our Lord shall appear to them in His glory, and on that event hangs the conversion of all nations through Israel. The miraculous deliverance of Hezekiah and his people from the army of the Assyrians by an angel from heaven is suggestive of the future deliverance of Israel from all nations at the second coming of Christ.

Paul acknowledged that he had been a great persecutor of the followers of Jesus Christ, with the consent and indorsement of the high priest and the elders, and that with letters from them he was on his way to Damascus to bring those of that way how, to Jerusalem to be punished when, his great event happened to him, and his whole life was changed (verses 3-5). He was full of the spirit of persecution until he had nearly reached Damascus, when suddenly a great light from heaven, above the brightness of the sun at noon, shone upon him and caused him to fall to the ground, and he heard a voice saying to him, "Saul, Saul, why persecutest thou me?" The repetition of the name was unusual, being used by the Old Testament only of Abraham, Jacob, Moses and Samuel (Gen. xxii, 11; xvi, 2; Ex. iii, 4; I Sam. iii, 10), and I have wondered if it caused Saul to think of the God of Israel as revealed to these men.

To Saul's question, "Who art thou, Lord?" the reply came promptly, "I am Jesus of Nazareth, whom thou persecutest" (verses 6-8). What a thrilling reply, what an eye opener, Jesus Christ really alive from the dead, and all that He said He was, and His followers believed Him to be! Then the persecuted ones were right, and Saul was all wrong. Quickly came the heart cry, "What shall I do, Lord?" And being told to go into Damascus and there he would be further instructed, he, having become blind by the great light, was led by the hand of them that were with him into Damascus (verses 9-11). Many in the city were fearing the arrival of this persecutor and no doubt praying to be delivered from his cruel hands. Perhaps some prayed for his conversion, even though he seemed such a hopeless one to pray for. Now, see what God had wrought, and let all who are praying for the salvation of others who are laid on their hearts be of good courage, for when God's clock strikes the hour the thing shall be done—not in your way perhaps, but in His own time and way.

He will see to it (Ps. cxiv, 10). Ever since I wrote on this lesson last, some six or seven years ago, the words of verse 11 have been much with me, "I could not see for the glory of that light." Paul was three days without sight and did neither eat nor drink (chapter ix, 9), but for all the rest of his life he was blind to all but the face of Jesus and deaf to every voice but His, just as Jesus Himself was blind and deaf to all but His Father's face and voice (Isa. xlii, 19). Did you ever pray to be thus blind and deaf?

At the hands of Ananias, one of the devout brethren at Damascus, Saul received sight, was baptized and heard his commission, as a chosen vessel of God, to see Jesus, know His will, hear His voice and be His witness to all men of what he had seen and heard (verses 12-16). Straightway he preached Christ in the synagogues, that He is the Son of God (chapter ix, 20). The incident of verses 17-21 concerning the trance and vision at Jerusalem in the temple tells us that Saul never forgot the day when he kept the raiment of them that stoned Stephen.

Who can tell how many incidents lead up to and have part in the conversion of a soul? The multitude listened until Paul spoke of being sent unto the gentiles, and then the uproar became so great that the captain had him brought into the castle and would have scourged him to find out what it was all about, but Paul was saved from this as a Roman citizen.

THE MARKET OF VAN DESIRE.

Marriage to obtain a title, marriage that is a mere bargain and sale, marriage without love, in which a girl gives herself to a man unworthy of her love, merely to gratify selfish ambition and pride, has been brought before the American public many many times in the past few years. A girl doomed to such a fate and saved only by the fearlessness of a minister is the story of the latest Triangle release, which will be shown at the opera house on Monday evening.

Helen Bagley's mother wants her to marry the Count Bernard d' Montaigne, a worthless specimen of humanity, with nothing but a title. He wants a slice of the Bagley's millions and to get a beautiful young girl along with them is most pleasing. Helen's father is dominated by his wife and the daughter having seen so little of genuine affection in the set in which she moves, that she doubts whether there is any such thing and wearily accedes to her mother's plan.

But John Armstrong, a young clergyman, from the country, called to the fashionable church where the Bagley's attend, does not like the proposition at all. Who could blame him for he is in love with the girl himself. Asked by the Bagley's to announce the engagement of Helen and the Count, he preaches a vitriolic sermon, denouncing the very sort of marriage that they contemplate. But the worst of it was that he had a woman of the street with him on the pulpit, and compared the too, one-selling herself to any man with the money, the other to one for a title. A terrific sensation follows, the church is split, and the trustee's demand the resignation of the minister. To see how it turns out, be sure to see the picture at the opera house on Monday evening.

COMRADE JOHN

Herman Stein, leader of a new religious cult, "Beauty Through Toil," secures the services of John Chance, an architect, to build a model community for him with the stipulation that the buildings be headed as the work of his followers. Before starting on the work Chance takes a trip to Paris, where at a carnival he rescues a beautiful American girl from the riotous masqueraders. They part knowing nothing more of each other than that her name is Cynthia and his, John. Cynthia, aboard ship on her way home, meets Prophet Stein. He sees in her an ideal High Priestess for his cult, her beauty appealing to him as a splendid advertising proposition. The girl is credulous and Stein wins her to his cult. When Chance returns from Europe he goes to Beechcroft to start his building and is surprised to find there the girl he saved in Paris. Here, in the course of the building construction, many thrilling episodes ensue, in which Stein, already married, attempts to make love to Cynthia and is frustrated by the watchful Chance. Stein has been steadily appropriating money en-

THE GREATEST GOLF CHAMP

CHICK EVANS.

"Chick" Evans of Chicago is now considered, the greatest golf champion the United States has produced, for his winning of the amateur championship at Merion, Pa., made him both the open and amateur champion of the country. Robert Gardner was the amateur champion, and in this tournament he was defending his crown. Evans, having won the open championship this year, was out to attach the amateur title.

Evans' golf career began in 1907 when he won the western junior and intercollegiate titles.

Evans' golf career began in 1907 when he won the western junior and intercollegiate titles.

He was just one stroke behind Walter Hagen of Rochester, in the national open tournament at Midlothian last year. Hagen had 290 for the seventy-two holes. In the amateur at Detroit, D. E. Sawyer beat him by 4 up and 5 to play in the first round. About two months ago Evans outstripped a field containing the cream of the profession in the national open championship tournament at Minikahada, returning a 72 hole score of 286.

trusted to him by his disciples, and in the final scene with his followers clamoring for his life and the Beechcroft buildings burning, he attempts an escape with his people's funds. He is felled by a falling beam and buried in the smouldering ruins. Cynthia is saved by Chance and finds in him the unalloyed realization of her ideals. Special at the Globe Theatre Today.

CURWENSVILLE NEWS

Mrs. James Dick, of Ebensburg, Pa., was a guest in the home of her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. S. J. McKen-drick yesterday.

Miss Grace Garner left yesterday for Philadelphia, where she will attend a Normal school during the winter and spring term.

Mrs. James Mulready and Mrs. Benson were in Clearfield on Friday and visited a lady friend who is a patient in the Clearfield hospital.

R. V. Miller and wife who have been visiting a daughter at Niagara Falls for the past five weeks, returned to their home in this place yesterday.

The child of Mr. and Mrs. William McClure, which has been ill for several weeks, is improving and hopes are now entertained for its entire recovery.

Phillips Orady, a son of Judge Orady, of Huntingdon, visited his cousin, Phil Thompson, Friday and part of today, leaving for his home this afternoon.

"The Five club" were entertained at the home of Miss Aline Blake Thursday afternoon. As the members have now made the circle of the five homes, their pleasant little gatherings will cease for the time being.

A little son of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Gallaher, South Side, is very ill with an attack of typhoid fever, coupled with some other juvenile ailments. The boy is about eleven months old, and there is but very little hope for his recovery.

The copious showers which fell on Thursday, while they may have spoiled some things at the big Clearfield fair, did a wonderful amount of good to the farmer, also refilling a good many of the small mountain streams which gone totally dry.

Not enough cars and a shortage of men is the complaint at the Pyramid mines at present time. As the months for colder weather draws night, the demand for coal increases, and when a mine gets in good shape for large shipments, then, as a rule, is when a shortage of transportation facilities occurs.

The Cassidy Coal company, composed practically of Curwensville men, has been doing some business lately and furnishing labor for quite a number of men. During the month of August this company shipped from their mines 125 cars of coal, and so far this month have sent out 66 gondolas loaded to the brim.

Richard Lantz has given up the idea of attending Dickinson College, Williamsport, for this year at least, and has accepted a position as weighmaster for the Cassidy Coal company. "Dick's" Curwensville friends are confident that he is going to make good on his new job, as he has never tackled anything yet that he was known to fall down.

Rev. Father Brady, of Reynoldsville is ill at the DuBois hospital with typhoid fever. He has been in the priesthood for some thirty-five years and Rev. Father Lynch, of this place, was his assistant for some ten years of that time. Father Brady is well and favorably known to the church people of his faith in Curwensville and Grampian, who are hoping to hear of his early recovery to good health.

As an inducement to the miners to get out more coal from two of the rooms, at the Caldwell mines, the manager, Mr. Bigler, will cut the coal at the company's expense and pay pick scale price for loading on the cars and getting it out. This offer is not made for the entire mines but only for the places above stated, and the inducement will continue until conditions change or the rooms made more habitable for the miners.

In a letter received from Postmaster Kittleberger, who went to Philadelphia several weeks ago for medical treatment, he states that he feels as though he is considerably improved and is confident that he will soon return to Curwensville "fit as a fiddle" and be in tip top shape for handling the work at the postoffice. This is most encouraging news for his hundred and one friends who have been following his case anxiously.

At the school board meeting Thursday evening only two matters of importance were presented for consideration, the first being a petition from Miss Blanche Graham, who wished to be released from her contract as a teacher in one of the schools for the coming term. A vote was taken which resulted two members voting for a release and two against, and unless other conditions exist Miss Graham will be expected to fulfill her contract the coming term. There that of John H. Myers, who was awarded the contract at $1.65 per ton, run of mine.

George J. Mayrisky was elected as delegate by local lodge No. 554, of the Slavish National society of this place, to represent his lodge at Scranton where the state meeting is being held. He left last evening in order to be able to attend the first session which convenes tomorrow afternoon. His lodge made no mistake when they elected him to represent them, as he is well looked on all matters pertaining to the work of the National society.

The intelligence of a sudden death in a community almost always creates a gloom and causes a shock to the people, whether the person is intimately known to them or not. Curwensville people were not exempt from this on Friday morning, when word was circulated on the thoroughfares that John Whitman, a farmer of Bloom township, had dropped dead in the arms of his daughter, Mrs. Rebecca Kendall, at her home on North Thompson street. Deceased had arrived in town Thursday evening, and was on his way to Clearfield to make out the final papers for the sale of his farm, and concluded to pass the night at the home of his daughter before going on his way, and appeared to be in apparently good health. Mr. Whitman was born in Bloom township November 16, 1845, hence was aged 72 years, 8 months and 22 days, and had lived his entire life in Bloom township. He was a son of Joseph and Mary (Horn) Whitman, the mother still surviving him at the age of almost ninety years. He was married to Miss Elizabeth McCracken on April 2, 1876, and she, with two daughters, Mrs. Rebecca Kendall, this place, and Mrs. Emma Hutton, of DuBois, also survive, as does also two sisters, Mrs. Abe Hess and Mrs. Simon Laborde, of Clearfield. Deceased had not complained of feeling ill the evening previous, and in the morning arose, came down stairs, passed through the kitchen to the pantry and was preparing to wash for breakfast. His daughter followed him to the pantry and was in converse with him, when he commenced to sway backward and would have fallen if she had not caught him in her arms, holding him thus while he expired. A physician was hurriedly summoned who pronounced death due to dropsy of the heart. His body will be taken to his home today, probably, and his remains will be interred in the Chteanut Grove cemetery. (At this writing no time has been fixed for the funeral to take place.)

CIVIL COURT IS GRINDING SLOW ON CLAIMS

Case of Geo. H. Dush Against Harbison-Walker Co. Now Commanding Attention

BOVIER VS. P. R. R. POSTPONED

The case of George H. Dush against the Harbison-Walker Refractories company for $5,000 damages, due to injuries received by plaintiff while working for the defendant company went to trial in civil court before Judge Bell Friday and is still on.

In this case Mr. Dush asks damages for personal injuries sustained on June 8, 1915. On that date he was engaged in pushing a car of clay through the plant at Stronach and slipped and fell, breaking his knee cap and leaving the ligaments badly, causing permanent injuries.

He alleges in his statement and testimony that the company through their superintendent promised several times to take care of him but when he made a final demand for compensation it was refused, hence the damage suit.

Dush is represented by R. D. Swoope and Patterson & Gleason, while W. C. Miller has charge of the defense.

The damage suit of Bert Bovier against the Pennsylvania Railroad company for personal injuries received when a buggy in which he was riding was struck by a train at McGees Mills on December 23rd, 1915, was continued until next term. Mr. Bovier is asking for $1,500 damages and there were some forty witnesses here all week to testify in the case but it was impossible to reach it on the list.

DUBOIS LAWYER DEPARTS FROM COURT RULES

QUOTES FALSE EVIDENCE

The sharp practice which attorneys sometimes indulge in, in their efforts to win a case before a jury, served yesterday to get a well known DuBois lawyer to get "in Dutch" with Judge Bell and resulted in the court withdrawing the case from the jury and putting the costs on the plaintiff, whom the attorney was overhauling attempting to recover for all the parties involved were from DuBois. The plaintiff was a foreign woman who had brought suit against a foreign gentleman for slander, alleging that her character was damaged to the extent of $1,000 by reason of certain stories and insinuations given circulation by the defendant.

The case occupied the attention of the court Thursday and Friday and the attorney for the plaintiff was making his final plea to the jury when he made the break which upset the proceedings and resulted in a bill of costs for his client.

While the attorney was making his plea Judge Bell retired momentarily from the bench to the private court in the rear, and when the attorney noticed him leave he started to quote as evidence some things that had not been testified to at all. When the court returned his seat on the bench the argument was continued until the evidence and ended with an eloquent plea for a verdict favorable to the fair prosecutor.

Judge Bell then delivered his charge to the jury, and at his conclusion before the jury had time to take their seats, the defendant's attorney arose and called the court's attention to the action of the plaintiff's attorney in misquoting things to the jury during his brief absence from the bench. Judge Bell thereupon stated that while not in his chair he had heard the remarks objected to and that the point was well taken, as the defendant's attorney knew that he had violated the rules of court in his attempt to run the case and that if the proper motion was made he would withdraw the case from the jury and place the costs on the plaintiff. The motion was promptly made and the case withdrawn which will necessitate the expense of a second trial at a later date.

WILSON DEMANDS GINGER

That "Wilson demands Ginger" is the announcement in a dispatch from Mr. Wilson's summer home to the New York papers. It appears that Mr. Wilson is highly indignant over the result in Maine and is disposed to hold his campaign managers responsible for it. It is predicted, therefore, that there is a very bad quarter of an hour in store for Chairman McCormick. Mr. Wilson never needs any criticisms of himself and, doubtless, is wholly unaware of the drastic condemnation to which he has been subjected by Mr. Hughes, Col. Roosevelt and other Republican speakers. Close friends describe him as convinced beyond argument of his own popularity, and firmly persuaded that nothing will prevent the American people from entrusting their government to him for another four years. But the Maine results were disturbing and, according to the correspondents with him, he purposes to make someone suffer for their carelessness in losing Maine.

THAT SHIPPING BILL

The New York Sun characterizes the passage of the McAdoo-Wilson Shipping Bill as "a concession to pig headed obsession." In the estimation of many competent observers, however, the Sun is unwarranted in this description. It is true that the Shipping Bill will serve no good purpose. It is true that it appropriates $50,000,000 of the people's money without promising anything but loss and injury in return, but there are certain features of the bill which should not be overlooked. First, the bill creates five jobs paying $7,500 year each and one paying $5,000 a year to be filled on the eve of the national election, a reason quite sufficient in itself, judging by the record of this administration. Then, as was so often explained to reluctant Democrats in congress, it "saves the face of the President." Of course it may puzzle any intelligent analyst to understand how the passage of the mere shadow of the original bill can save Mr. Wilson's face, but his son-in-law assured members of congress it would and so, perhaps it has. When the Crown Prince first conceived the idea of a Shipping Bill, there was a great need of transportation and many marooned foreign vessels were in American ports. It was Crown Prince McAdoo's idea to buy these ships, but he made the fatal mistake of putting himself and Secretary Daniels on the board to make the purchases. Republicans, and some intelligent Democrats, like Senator Bankhead, foresaw that to buy these vessels in time of war and send them out under the American flag would inevitably involve this country in the European war, while Democratic and Republican senators alike were wholly unwilling to trust Mr. McAdoo to purchase $50,000,000 worth of ships. They knew of course that poor old Daniels would be a "me too" on the board and that the other members would not dare oppose the President's son-in-law. They sought to amend the bill by eliminating McAdoo and Daniels from the board and inserting a provision against buying foreign ships. The Crown Prince would not permit that and the bill was defeated by Republican filibuster with which the Democratic senators frankly sympathized.

ALLEGED TROUBLE MAKER DEPARTED FROM JAPAN

Tokio, Sept. 15.—(By United Press) Hermann Wohlers, a German resident of Yokohama for the last 3 years, has just been deported from this country for trying to make trouble between the United States, Japan and Great Britain. He was given 8 days to get out and he went quick. Several other charges against Wohlers were made; that he wrote charges against Japan to the American government; that he induced an intoxicated American marine to pull the British Union Jack from the wall of a ballroom where Americans were celebrating the 4th of July with Britishers as guests, for which he marine was court-martialed. That he entered Yokohama Park and loudly denounced the Russ-Jap pact.

Today's Geographic Study of The Great European War Zone

Washington, D. C., Sept. 15.—Dobruja, that fertile Roumanian plain lying between the Danube and the Black Sea, where German and Bulgarian forces recently began their important drive northward, is described in the following war geography bulletin issued from Washington by the National Geographic Society:

"When the low lying, treeless, largely fen-and-swamp province of Dobruja was ceded to Roumania in 1878 and in exchange this nation was despoiled of the rich, thickly populated province of Bessarabia which had been a part of her domain since it had been taken from Russia after the Crimean war, the Roumanians believed more than ever in their ancient proverb, 'Guard me, O God, against my friends, for against my foes I can guard myself.' In the 38 years which have intervened, however, Dobruja has taken rapid strides, thanks to the advances in agriculture and to the prosperity of the several Black Sea ports of the province. So striking has been the development of the region that at the conclusion of the Second Balkan War in 1913, Roumania demanded as her share of the spoils from Bulgaria an enlargement of this formerly despised area. Including this newly acquired territory the Dobruja now embraces nearly 9,500 square miles, with a population of 600,000, made up of many elements—Bulgars, Turks, Roumanians, gypsies and Jews.

"By an ironic whim of fate, Roumania paid her expenses of the war in which she acquired this recent addition to Dobruja and secured the capital for its development from the proceeds of a loan of 300,000,000 francs floated in Germany just prior to the outbreak of the great European conflict. Under the improved conditions this section now produces important crops of cereals, tobacco, sugar beets, vines and mulberries for silk worms.

"Bounded on the north and west by the Danube, on the east by the Black Sea, and on the south by Bulgaria, Dobruja is of great strategic importance, a fact recognized by the Romans who defended this section on the south by Trajan's Wall, a double rampart extending from the Black Sea, at a point near Constanza, to the banks of the Danube. The present Roumanian-Bulgarian frontier is some 60 miles southwest of this ancient wall, an extension from the river to the sea a distance of 100 miles in an air line.

"The earliest mention of the Dobruja region is as the home of the Geta and Dacians (Pliny explains that the former is the Greek name and the latter the Latin for the same tribe). Herodotus speaks of this people as 'the bravest and most honorable of all the Thracian tribe', and credits them with having attempted to stay the march of the Persians under King Darius in the 6th century before the Christian era.

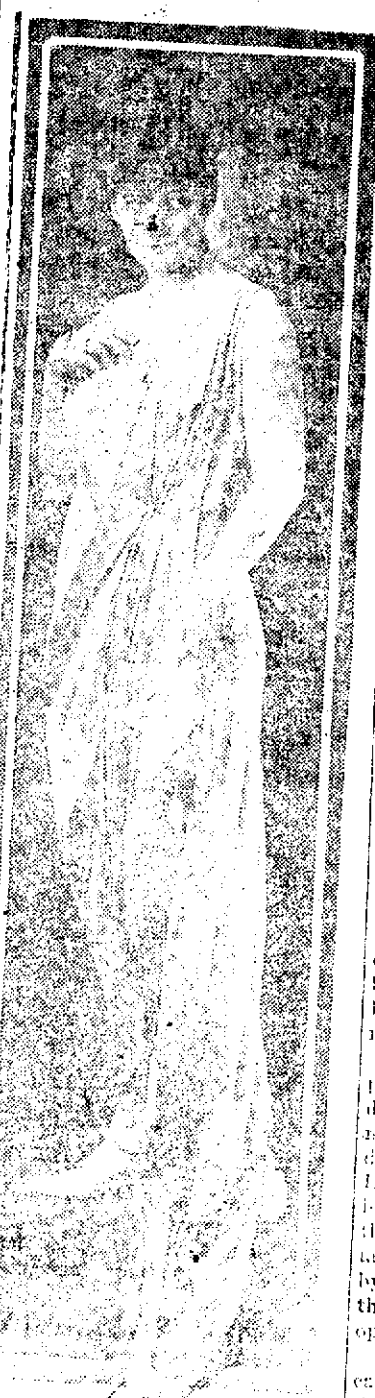

"One of the most picturesque stories of the ancient inhabitants of Dobruja is related in connection with an expedition against them headed by Philip of Macedonia. The great general was besieging one of the principal towns of the tribe and just as he was about to give the signal for an assault the gates were thrown open and a long line of priests, clad in white robes and playing lyres, marched out and came into the camp of the enemy. So impressed was Philip by this sight that he spared the city and took Media, the daughter of the Getae, as his wife. Thereafter the Getae were allies of the Macedonians in their campaign against the Scythians. By the middle of the fourth century B. C. the tribe began to expand beyond the bounds of Scythia Minor, as the region was then known, into the land lying on the left bank of the Danube.

"During the last quarter of the 7th century, Ispardich, one of the five sons of the legendary Bulgarian prince Kuvrat, with a band of followers from Bessarabia, crossed the Danube into Dobruja and conquered its people. But the Bulgarians experienced the same fate which the Normans encountered with the Saxons in England—the conquerors were absorbed by the conquered.

"By the treaty of San Stefano, which ended the Russo-Turkish war of 1877-78, in which the Roumanians distinguished themselves at Plevna, Dobruja was ceded to Russia by Turkey, the express design of the former being to acquire the land and force Roumania to accept it in exchange for coveted Bessarabia, as previously stated.

"From the point where it becomes the western boundary of Dobruja the Danube is a wide stream, flowing between low banks. Its waters are studded with numerous islets which are the homes of vast flocks of water fowls—wild swans, wild geese, pelicans and herons. A famous traveler described the impression which this region makes upon passengers of the river steamers, thus: 'At night pelicans and storks stalking about on lonely islands utter at times a wild cry, which, more than anything I know, brings to mind the images of solitude and desolation.'

SALLY AT HER BEST

My Dear Maude—Don't you think I look stunning in this? I know I do. I have got it ready for the winter campaign. I am going to break some hearts after Nov. 1—that is, I hope I do. SAYS BODY IS A POISON FACTORY

Urges Everyone to Drink Glass of Hot Water Before Breakfast

Just as coal, when it burns, leaves behind a certain amount of combustible material in the form of ashes, so the food and drink taken day after day leaves in the alimentary canal a certain amount of indigestible material, which if not completely eliminated from the system each day, becomes food for the millions of bacteria which infest the bowels. From this mass of left-over waste, toxins and poison-like poisons are formed and sucked into the blood.

Men and women who can't get feeling right must begin to take inside baths. Before eating breakfast each morning drink a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it to wash out of the thirty feet of bowels the previous day's accumulation of poisons and toxins and to keep the entire alimentary canal clean, pure and fresh.

Those who are subject to sick headache, colds, biliousness, constipation, others who wake up with bad taste, foul breath, backache, rheumatic stiffness, or have a sour, gassy stomach after meals, are urged to get a quarter pound of limestone phosphate from the drug store, and begin practicing internal sanitation. This will cost very little, but is sufficient to make anyone an enthusiast on the subject.

Remember inside bathing is more important than outside bathing, because the skin pores do not absorb impurities into the blood, causing poor health, while the bowel pores do. Just as soap and hot water cleanses sweaters and freshens the skin, so hot water, and limestone phosphate act on the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels.

ALL CANADA TO BE "DRY."

Ottawa, Ont., Sept. 16.—A forty years' battle on the part of the anti-liquor forces to make Ontario "dry" was crowned with victory today, when every licensed bar in the province was closed by operation of the prohibition statute enacted by the legislature last Spring. The winning of Ontario is regarded as the most important victory that the prohibitionists have yet scored in Canada, since the Province is the largest in population and the most important from an industrial standpoint of any of the Dominion.

The chief aim of the new law is to wipe out the retail liquor business. The law does not prohibit the manufacture of intoxicants, so long as the brewers and distillers do not sell their product in Ontario. The wholesale liquor business will be permitted to continue under strict regulations. The sale of liquor for medicinal, scientific and sacramental purposes will be permitted, also under strict regulations. Druggists are to be permitted to sell liquor only on physician's prescriptions and then only in quantities not to exceed six ounces.

The chief sufferers from the enforcement of the prohibition law will be the hotels, which in Canada have depended to a much greater extent upon the revenues derived from their bars than have the hotels in the United States. The capital invested in hotels in Ontario is estimated to be between fifty and one hundred million dollars. With the closing of their bars it is believed that many of the hotels will be forced to quit business.

With the winning of Ontario the prohibitionists see in prospect an all-dry Canada—the first of the great nations of the world to put its foot down on the liquor traffic. Prince Edward Island led the way by abolishing the sale of liquor by retail more than fifteen years ago. In June of last year Saskatchewan followed suit by closing up all the retail bars with the exception of twenty government operated liquor stores.

Manitoba, Nova Scotia and Alberta came under the prohibition banner this year. In New Brunswick the sale of liquor will cease next April, in British Columbia next June and in the Yukon Territory next July, provided the prohibitionists win in the voting that is about to take place. Newfoundland also will finish up her licensed liquor selling at the end of this year. This will leave Quebec as the only province in which prohibition legislation has not been passed.

HERE'S THE "DEATH GOD."

Captain De Booy, a young Dutch explorer, found this "death god" in the West Indies, and he brought it to the United States. It was in a deep, dark cave, such a wonderful cave, he said, that the natives had not dared to enter since the days of Columbus. Consequently he insisted the god is at least as old as Columbus would be had he lived. He says there is no other "Death God" in the world just like this one except a lady death god, and no one can get her. Captain De Booy presented the god to the American Museum of Natural History in New York.

Pity the Man Who Doesn't Advertise!

"I have an established business. I don't require advertising."

That is the answer of some self satisfied man to a request for advertising. Meanwhile his progressive neighbor is using printer's ink lavishly.

The result is obvious. It's only a question of time. The self satisfied business man soon finds his trade disappearing. His progressive neighbor goes ahead with leaps and bounds. Every business, no matter how firmly established, needs advertising. If it isn't advertised it soon will be in a rut. Don't get in a rut. Advertise.

Section 8. The debt of any county, city, borough, township, school district, or other municipality or incorporated district, except as provided herein, and in section fifteen of this article, shall never exceed seven (7) per centum upon the assessed value of the taxable property therein, but the debt of the city of Philadelphia may be increased in such amount that the total city debt shall not exceed ten (10) per centum upon the assessed value of the taxable property therein, nor shall any such municipality or district incur any new debt, or increase its indebtedness, to an amount exceeding two (2) per centum upon such assessed valuation of property without the consent of the electors thereof at a public election in such manner as shall be provided by law. Lesson XII.—Third Quarter, For Sept. 17, 1916.

THE INTERNATIONAL SERIES.

Text of the Lesson, Acts xxii, 17-29.
Memory Verses, 27-29—Golden Text, Pa. xci, 2—Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

This chapter is the record of Paul's account of himself and his conversion given to the people from the castle stairs. The chief captain having given him permission to speak after he found out that he was not the leader of a band of murderers, he stood on the stairs, and, beckoning with his hand till there was a great silence, he spake unto the people in the Hebrew language, and, hearing him speak in their own language, they kept the more silence (xxi, 40; xxii, 1, 2). It was the Jews from Asia who started this riot, and the fact that the Lord had spoken to him from heaven at the time of his conversion in the Hebrew language may have led him thus to decide at this time (xxi, 27; xxvi, 14).

When the Spirit records an event or a bit of history several times He must have some special reason for so doing and desire that we give special attention to it. Note the threefold repetition of Paul's story in chapters ix, xxii and xxvi and partially in Phil. iii and I Tim. i and compare the three times repeated record of Hezekiah and Sennacherib in Kings, Chronicles and Isaiah and other repeated records. I have no doubt that the conversion of Saul was typical of the conversion of all Israel, when our Lord shall appear to them in His glory, and on that event hangs the conversion of all nations through Israel. The miraculous deliverance of Hezekiah and his people from the army of the Assyrians by an angel from heaven is suggestive of the future deliverance of Israel from all nations at the second coming of Christ.

Paul acknowledged that he had been a great persecutor of the followers of Jesus Christ, with the consent and indorsement of the high priest and the elders, and that with letters from them he was on his way to Damascus to bring those of that way how, to Jerusalem to be punished when, his great event happened to him, and his whole life was changed (verses 3-5). He was full of the spirit of persecution until he had nearly reached Damascus, when suddenly a great light from heaven, above the brightness of the sun at noon, shone upon him and caused him to fall to the ground, and he heard a voice saying to him, "Heaven, 'Saul, Saul, why persecutest thou me?' The repetition of the name was unusual, being used by the Old Testament only of Abraham, Jacob, Moses and Samuel (Gen. xxii, 11; xvi, 2; Ex. iii, 4; I Sam. iii, 10), and I have wondered if it caused Saul to think of the God of Israel as revealed to these men.

To Saul's question, "Who art thou, Lord?" the reply came promptly, "I am Jesus of Nazareth, whom thou persecutest" (verses 6-8). What a thrilling reply, what an eye opener, Jesus Christ really alive from the dead, and all that He said He was, and His followers believed Him to be! Then the persecuted ones were right, and Saul was all wrong. Quickly came the heart cry, "What shall I do, Lord?" And being told to go into Damascus and there he would be further instructed, he, having become blind by the great light, was led by the hand of them that were with him into Damascus (verses 9-11). Many in the city were fearing the arrival of this persecutor and no doubt praying to be delivered from his cruel hands. Perhaps some prayed for his conversion, even though he seemed such a hopeless one to pray for. Now, see what God had wrought, and let all who are praying for the salvation of others who are laid on their hearts be of good courage, for when God's clock strikes the hour the thing shall be done—not in your way perhaps, but in His own time and way.

He will see to it (Ps. cxiv, 10). Ever since I wrote on this lesson last, some six or seven years ago, the words of verse 11 have been much with me, "I could not see for the glory of that light." Paul was three days without sight and did neither eat nor drink (chapter ix, 9), but for all the rest of his life he was blind to all but the face of Jesus and deaf to every voice but His, just as Jesus Himself was blind and deaf to all but His Father's face and voice (Isa. xlii, 19). Did you ever pray to be thus blind and deaf?

At the hands of Ananias, one of the devout brethren at Damascus, Saul received sight, was baptized and heard his commission, as a chosen vessel of God, to see Jesus, know His will, hear His voice and be His witness to all men of what he had seen and heard (verses 12-16). Straightway he preached Christ in the synagogues, that He is the Son of God (chapter ix, 20). The incident of verses 17-21 concerning the trance and vision at Jerusalem in the temple tells us that Saul never forgot the day when he kept the raiment of them that stoned Stephen.

Who can tell how many incidents lead up to and have part in the conversion of a soul? The multitude listened until Paul spoke of being sent unto the gentiles, and then the uproar became so great that the captain had him brought into the castle and would have scourged him to find out what it was all about, but Paul was saved from this as a Roman citizen.

THE GREATEST HURDLER.

ROBERT SIMPSON.

When Robert Simpson, the great hurdler of the University of Missouri, beat F. W. Kelly of the Los Angeles Athletic Club, E. J. Thompson of the same club and Fred Murray of the Olympic Athletic Club of San Francisco in the 120-yard hurdle race in 14 4-5 seconds at the Amateur Athletic Union national championships at Newark, N. J., he not only made a new world's record, but he fixed on him the gaze of athletes the world over. Never before have four such men competed in the race. Simpson was a world's champion; Kelly was the Olympic champion; Murray was the national champion, while Thompson was the California champion.

THE MARKET OF VAN DESIRE.

Marriage to obtain a title, marriage that is a mere bargain and sale, marriage without love, in which a girl gives herself to a man unworthy of her love, merely to gratify selfish ambition and pride, has been brought before the American public many many times in the past few years. A girl doomed to such a fate and saved only by the fearlessness of a minister is the story of the latest Triangle release, which will be shown at the opera house on Monday evening.

Helen Bagley's mother wants her to marry the Count Bernard d' Montaigne, a worthless specimen of humanity, with nothing but a title. He wants a slice of the Bagley's millions and to get a beautiful young girl along with them is most pleasing. Helen's father is dominated by his wife and the daughter having seen so little of genuine affection in the set in which she moves, that she doubts whether there is any such thing and wearily accedes to her mother's plan.

But John Armstrong, a young clergyman, from the country, called to the fashionable church where the Bagley's attend, does not like the proposition at all. Who could blame him for he is in love with the girl himself. Asked by the Bagley's to announce the engagement of Helen and the Count, he preaches a vitriolic sermon, denouncing the very sort of marriage that they contemplate. But the worst of it was that he had a woman of the street with him on the pulpit, and compared the too, one-selling herself to any man with the money, the other to one for a title. A terrific sensation follows, the church is split, and the trustee's demand the resignation of the minister. To see how it turns out, be sure to see the picture at the opera house on Monday evening.

COMRADE JOHN

Herman Stein, leader of a new religious cult, "Beauty Through Toil," secures the services of John Chance, an architect, to build a model community for him with the stipulation that the buildings be headed as the work of his followers. Before starting on the work Chance takes a trip to Paris, where at a carnival he rescues a beautiful American girl from the riotous masqueraders. They part knowing nothing more of each other than that her name is Cynthia and his, John. Cynthia, aboard ship on her way home, meets Prophet Stein. He sees in her an ideal High Priestess for his cult, her beauty appealing to him as a splendid advertising proposition. The girl is credulous and Stein wins her to his cult. When Chance returns from Europe he goes to Beechcroft to start his building and is surprised to find there the girl he saved in Paris. Here, in the course of the building construction, many thrilling episodes ensue, in which Stein, already married, attempts to make love to Cynthia and is frustrated by the watchful Chance. Stein has been steadily appropriating money en-

THE GREATEST GOLF CHAMP

CHICK EVANS.

"Chick" Evans of Chicago is now considered the greatest golf champion the United States has produced, for his winning of the amateur championship at Merion, Pa., made him both the open and amateur champion of the country. Robert Gardner was the amateur champion, and in this tournament he was defending his crown. Evans, having won the open championship this year, was out to attach the amateur title.

Evans' golf career began in 1907 when he won the western junior and intercollegiate titles.

Evans' golf career began in 1907 when he won the western junior and intercollegiate titles.

He was just one stroke behind Walter Hagen of Rochester, in the national open tournament at Midlothian last year. Hagen had 290 for the seventy-two holes. In the amateur at Detroit, D. E. Sawyer beat him by 4 up and 5 to play in the first round. About two months ago Evans outstripped a field containing the cream of the profession in the national open championship tournament at Minikahada, returning a 72 hole score of 286.

trusted to him by his disciples, and in the final scene with his followers clamoring for his life and the Beechcroft buildings burning, he attempts an escape with his people's funds. He is felled by a falling beam and buried in the smouldering ruins. Cynthia is saved by Chance and finds in him the unalloyed realization of her ideals. Special at the Globe Theatre Today.

CURWENSVILLE NEWS

Mrs. James Dick, of Ebensburg, Pa., was a guest in the home of her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. S. J. McKen-drick yesterday.

Miss Grace Garner left yesterday for Philadelphia, where she will attend a Normal school during the winter and spring term.

Mrs. James Mulready and Mrs. Benson were in Clearfield on Friday and visited a lady friend who is a patient in the Clearfield hospital.

R. V. Miller and wife who have been visiting a daughter at Niagara Falls for the past five weeks, returned to their home in this place yesterday.

The child of Mr. and Mrs. William McClure, which has been ill for several weeks, is improving and hopes are now entertained for its entire recovery.

Phillips Orady, a son of Judge Orady, of Huntingdon, visited his cousin, Phil Thompson, Friday and part of today, leaving for his home this afternoon.

"The Five club" were entertained at the home of Miss Aline Blake Thursday afternoon. As the members have now made the circle of the five homes, their pleasant little gatherings will cease for the time being.

A little son of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Gallaher, South Side, is very ill with an attack of typhoid fever, coupled with some other juvenile ailments. The boy is about eleven months old, and there is but very little hope for his recovery.

The copious showers which fell on Thursday, while they may have spoiled some things at the big Clearfield fair, did a wonderful amount of good to the farmer, also refilling a good many of the small mountain streams which gone totally dry.

Not enough cars and a shortage of men is the complaint at the Pyramid mines at present time. As the months for colder weather draws night, the demand for coal increases, and when a mine gets in good shape for large shipments, then, as a rule, is when a shortage of transportation facilities occurs.

The Cassidy Coal company, composed practically of Curwensville men, has been doing some business lately and furnishing labor for quite a number of men. During the month of August this company shipped from their mines 125 cars of coal, and so far this month have sent out 66 gondolas loaded to the brim.

Richard Lantz has given up the idea of attending Dickinson College, Williamsport, for this year at least, and has accepted a position as weighmaster for the Cassidy Coal company. "Dick's" Curwensville friends are confident that he is going to make good on his new job, as he has never tackled anything yet that he was known to fall down.

Rev. Father Brady, of Reynoldsville is ill at the DuBois hospital with typhoid fever. He has been in the priesthood for some thirty-five years and Rev. Father Lynch, of this place, was his assistant for some ten years of that time. Father Brady is well and favorably known to the church people of his faith in Curwensville and Grampian, who are hoping to hear of his early recovery to good health.

As an inducement to the miners to get out more coal from two of the rooms, at the Caldwell mines, the manager, Mr. Bigler, will cut the coal at the company's expense and pay pick scale price for loading on the cars and getting it out. This offer is not made for the entire mines but only for the places above stated, and the inducement will continue until conditions change or the rooms made more habitable for the miners.

In a letter received from Postmaster Kittleberger, who went to Philadelphia several weeks ago for medical treatment, he states that he feels as though he is considerably improved and is confident that he will soon return to Curwensville "fit as a fiddle" and be in tip top shape for handling the work at the postoffice. This is most encouraging news for his hundred and one friends who have been following his case anxiously.

At the school board meeting Thursday evening only two matters of importance were presented for consideration, the first being a petition from Miss Blanche Graham, who wished to be released from her contract as a teacher in one of the schools for the coming term. A vote was taken which resulted two members voting for a release and two against, and unless other conditions exist Miss Graham will be expected to fulfill her contract the coming term. There that of John H. Myers, who was awarded the contract at $1.65 per ton, run of mine.

George J. Mayrisky was elected as delegate by local lodge No. 554, of the Slavish National society of this place, to represent his lodge at Scranton where the state meeting is being held. He left last evening in order to be able to attend the first session which convenes tomorrow afternoon. His lodge made no mistake when they elected him to represent them, as he is well looked on all matters pertaining to the work of the National society.

The intelligence of a sudden death in a community almost always creates a gloom and causes a shock to the people, whether the person is intimately known to them or not. Curwensville people were not exempt from this on Friday morning, when word was circulated on the thoroughfares that John Whitman, a farmer of Bloom township, had dropped dead in the arms of his daughter, Mrs. Rebecca Kendall, at her home on North Thompson street. Deceased had arrived in town Thursday evening, and was on his way to Clearfield to make out the final papers for the sale of his farm, and concluded to pass the night at the home of his daughter before going on his way, and appeared to be in apparently good health. Mr. Whitman was born in Bloom township November 16, 1845, hence was aged 72 years, 8 months and 22 days, and had lived his entire life in Bloom township. He was a son of Joseph and Mary (Horn) Whitman, the mother still surviving him at the age of almost ninety years. He was married to Miss Elizabeth McCracken on April 2, 1876, and she, with two daughters, Mrs. Rebecca Kendall, this place, and Mrs. Emma Hutton, of DuBois, also survive, as does also two sisters, Mrs. Abe Hess and Mrs. Simon Laborde, of Clearfield. Deceased had not complained of feeling ill the evening previous, and in the morning arose, came down stairs, passed through the kitchen to the pantry and was preparing to wash for breakfast. His daughter followed him to the pantry and was in converse with him, when he commenced to sway backward and would have fallen if she had not caught him in her arms, holding him thus while he expired. A physician was hurriedly summoned who pronounced death due to dropsy of the heart. His body will be taken to his home today, probably, and his remains will be interred in the Chteanut Grove cemetery. (At this writing no time has been fixed for the funeral to take place.)

BOSTON IS GETTING OLD.

Boston, Mass., Sept. 16.—Boston will reach its 286th birthday anniversary tomorrow. It was on September 17th, 1630, that the colonists under John Winthrop removed to the present site of Boston from Charlestown, where they had established themselves several months earlier. At the time peninsula was called Trimontaine. The colonists renamed the place Boston, after the Lincolnshire town whence many of them had come.

Phoenix, Ariz., Sept. 16.—Leading metal-producing concerns in all sections of the United States will be represented at the meeting of the American Institute of Mining Engineers, which is to be held in Arizona next week, with sessions in half a dozen of the principal mining centers of the state. The country's record production of metal during the past year has greatly stimulated the interest in general mining topics which will be discussed at the meeting.
